

Keep Patients Voting

Patient organisations call for guarantee of voting rights and meaningful involvement at the European Medicines Agency

As the EU's general pharmaceutical legislation enters a decisive phase, 72 additional patient organisations have joined EURORDIS–Rare Diseases Europe and the European Patients' Forum (EPF) in calling on EU policymakers to safeguard strong and meaningful patient involvement at the European Medicines Agency (EMA) – including the retention of patient voting rights in the Committee for Medicinal Products for Human Use (CHMP).

In a joint statement first published on 10 March 2025, EURORDIS and EPF warned that ongoing Council negotiations risk reducing the number of patient representatives and stripping their voting rights in the CHMP and the Pharmacovigilance and Risk Assessment Committee (PRAC) – the two EMA bodies central to approving and monitoring medicines in Europe.

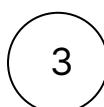

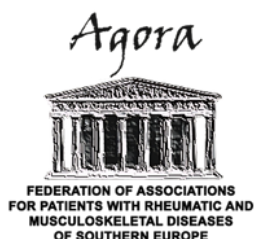

We are therefore proud to announce that our joint statement has now received widespread endorsement from a growing number of patient organisations, members of EPF and EURORDIS. This momentum reflects a shared concern across the community: the current direction of the pharmaceutical legislation risks undermining meaningful patient involvement.

Together, we are raising our voices to ensure the final legislation can fully reflect patients' lived experiences, expertise, and priorities, and does not diminish their role. This strong display of unity reinforces our collective commitment to ensuring that the future EU pharmaceutical framework truly serves the needs of patients by placing them at the heart of every decision.
