TABLE 1. This table lists various data sources, mostly databases, where you can find reliable data and information, especially related to health and healthcare.

DATA SOURCES
PEER-REVIEWED HEALTH LITERATURE DATABASES	Open (no fees): PubMed Google Scholar Cochrane Library Closed (require a fee) Embase CINAHL More peer-reviewed health literature databases organised by topic and alphabetical orders here
RARE DISEASE DATABASES: Data on all rare diseases, including about disease prevalence, symptomology, classification, clinical research, patient organisations, diagnostic tests and expert centres, among others	Orphanet ORPHADATA
PATIENT REPORTED OUTCOMES & QUALITY OF LIFE DATABASES	ERICA PROMs repository EORTC quality of life library PROMIS database NIH (measures question bank here)
OTHER HEALTH AND RESEARCH RELATED DATABASES	Clinical outcomes assessment measures: Proqolid Other: UK Service for economic, social and population data National Center for Health Statistics, USA (includes questionnaires, data sets and other documentation on various health topics) Qualitative data repository, USA (stores qualitative and multi-method research in the social sciences and related disciplines)
GREY LITERATURE: non-medical or scientific literature published by patient organisations, medical societies or reliable national or international organisations	EURORDIS resources WHO resources (more here) OECD resources (more here)

You can find a comprehensive list of data portals focusing on different health-related areas and hosting datasets, as well as other documents from around the world here.